DETAILED ACTION

CLAIMS PRESENTED

Claims 16-38 are presented.

Response to Arguments

Applicant correctly pointed out that each claim recited document definition file and not data definition file. Thus, the rejections are not made final.

Nevertheless, Applicant's arguments are not yet persuasive and the claims are not yet considered patentable. Applicant asserts: "Note that a DTD (Document Type Definition) is not a document definition file. A document definition file is a template for extracting information from a server or group of servers (See discussion starting on Page 9 of specification entitled Document Definition File). A DTD is a formal set of grammar which defines the XML." Yet, the Office is not clear as to what part of the specification (if not whole, then which part) is to be read into the definition of "document definition file." To the extent that this is not clear, Applicant is requested to either explicitly amend or to otherwise respond.

CLAIM REJECTIONS

The claim rejections remain as in the previous Office Action.
